FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

- Global equities were stable in November. On the whole, US economic data was steady, but inflation fears persisted. A proposal to cut corporate taxes was scrutinised, while Jerome Powell's appointment as the next Federal Reserve chair suggested a continuity in the gradual tightening of monetary policy.
- Economic data in Europe improved, largely lifted by robust performance in Germany, which shrugged off setbacks in establishing a ruling coalition. In the UK, the Bank of England raised the interest rate for the first time in a decade. There was some optimism about progress in Brexit talks, bolstered by the UK's agreement to financial conditions set by the European Union, although Irish border terms are not yet finalised and could prove problematic.
- Elsewhere, Japanese equities advanced on expectations of better corporate earnings. In China, investors were unnerved by a regulatory crackdown on leverage, whereas expectations of softer mainland demand for iron ore dampened prospects for mining companies.
- Technology stocks rallied initially but faltered, as investors took profits. Energy stocks were boosted by stabilising oil prices, primarily due to an extension of OPEC-led production cuts.
- In November, we introduced Brenntag, a leading specialist in the chemicals business with a global presence, an asset-light distribution model, sticky customer base, potential to increase profitability and grow market share; Cerner, a provider of IT solutions for the healthcare industry which offers clients the potential to improve efficiency and reduce costs; Intel, which has a good business model; and Avery Dennison as well as Texas Instruments, given their solid financial positions. Separately, we added to Femsa, TJX and Schlumberger, following a period of share-price weakness. We also added to Jardine Matheson, in view of its attractive valuation and range of businesses in Asia.
- Conversely, we exited KWS Saat, given its full valuation. We also took profits from EOG Resources, which rose on the back of higher oil prices and better financial results.
