FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

- Global equities were up in September, with sentiment largely driven by central bank action. Markets were buoyed by the US Federal Reserve's decision to leave interest rates unchanged, because of lacklustre jobs data in August.
- Elsewhere, the European Central Bank adopted a wait-and-see stance and chose to not extend the end-date of its bond-buying programme, disappointing investors who were hoping for more quantitative easing. The Bank of Japan shifted from increasing liquidity towards controlling long-term interest rates.
- Meanwhile, the oil-price ended higher after yet another volatile month, following a decline in US inventories and a preliminary deal among Opec members to curb production for the first time since 2008.
- There were no major changes to the portfolio in September.
