FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The Fund gained 0.53% during the month of August 2016, outperforming the benchmark which declined 0.20%. Stock selection in the underlying Europe funds contributed positively. YTD, the Fund fell 5.31% while the benchmark fell 2.20%.

Markit's manufacturing PMI for both US and EU trended lower. US PMI declined to 52 in August from 52.9 in July while EU manufacturing PMI edged lower to 51.7 in August from 52 in July. Japan manufacturing PMI continued its upward trend at 49.5 in August from 49.3 in July, signalling a softer deterioration in operating conditions within Japanese manufacturers.

We expect at least one rate hike in the US this year as the Federal Reserve reiterated that the stance of monetary policy remains accommodative. We believe Japan will continue to struggle due to its FX headwind. We continue to believe interest rates will remain low for longer and we expect major central banks in the developed markets to continue on easing measures.
